Klivvr Enhances Its AI-Powered Financial Assistant, K.ai, Introducing In-Chat Money Transfers and Nearest-Booth Routing

Cairo - November 2026: Klivvr, The Innovative Digital Ecosystem that Provides Greater Flexibility and Full Control Over Users' Financial Lives, has announced a new set of updates to K.ai, Egypt's first AI-powered financial assistant.

K.ai has already enabled users to benefit from a range of intelligent financial capabilities, including gaining insights into their financial transactions, tracking and managing their financial obligations and installments, exploring available financial offers, and assessing their purchasing capacity, helping them make responsible financial decisions.

The latest release expands on these capabilities by transitioning K.ai from an informational and insight-driven assistant into an action-oriented agent capable of executing day-to-day transactions directly within the conversational interface. Klivvr users can now initiate money transfers to any Klivvr user simply by prompting K.ai, bypassing multi-step menus and manual in-app navigation for a faster, frictionless, and more intuitive payment experience.

In addition, K.ai now leverages real-time geolocation data to identify and route users to the nearest Klivvr booths and branches. This enhances the previous capability, which provided a static, directory-style list of all locations without distance sorting, delivering a significantly more seamless, contextual, and convenient user experience.

These updates reflect Klivvr's commitment to building an end-to-end financial ecosystem tailored to its growing customer base of 700,000+ users, backed by more than $10 million in proprietary technology investments since inception. The new features are live and available to all users across app stores via the latest Klivvr app release.

###

About Klivvr:

Klivvr is a fintech company founded in Egypt in 2021, offering integrated digital financial solutions across payments and lending, aimed at giving users greater control over their daily financial experience through a smart payment card and app that enable spending tracking, budget management, and access to a comprehensive suite of digital financial services.

In 2023, the company received approval from the Central Bank of Egypt (CBE), marking a significant milestone in its growth and expansion journey within the Egyptian market.

In 2024, Klivvr launched Klivvr Family, Egypt's first family banking product, enabling users to manage household spending through a single account while issuing up to five individual cards for family members. The feature also allows real-time spending tracking, customized spending limits for each card, and enhanced rewards benefits.

In 2025, Klivvr expanded into consumer finance with the launch of its Buy Now, Pay Later (BNPL) offering, providing financing of up to EGP 500,000 with installment plans of up to 60 months, alongside one-time ticket financing of up to EGP 15 million for major purchases, in partnership with a network of more than 1,000 merchants and partners across Egypt.

In 2026, Klivvr continued expanding its digital ecosystem with the launch of K.ai, Egypt's first AI-powered financial assistant, delivering personalized spending insights and smarter money management, alongside a comprehensive loyalty program (K.Points) and K.Shop, an in-app marketplace, aimed at delivering a more seamless and rewarding user experience. As a result, Klivvr has surpassed 700,000 users.